

KISHORE RESIDENCE

Project Description

This residence is envisioned as a calm, materially rich home where every space flows into the next with quiet intention. Guided by a Japandi sensibility with subtle Indian nuances, the design relies on lime-washed surfaces, warm natural wood, and a soft palette of neutrals and pastels to create an atmosphere of ease and refinement. The materiality is tactile yet restrained, allowing the architecture and custom-crafted elements to take centre stage.

The planning follows an open, unobstructed layout that emphasises visual continuity. Rooms are connected through clean sightlines, muted tones, and consistent detailing rather than partitions, giving the home an expansive and harmonious character. Custom-made furniture forms a major part of the design language. Each piece is meticulously crafted with crisp profiles, balanced proportions, and a quiet elegance that complements the architecture instead of overpowering it.

Subtle spatial gestures enhance the home's experience, such as the curved ceiling that marks the transition from the hallway into the main living zones, softening movement and grounding the circulation. Throughout the residence, the interplay of light, texture, and warm wood accents creates a serene rhythm, resulting in an interior that feels cohesive, calm, and deeply connected to its material palette.
